CASTILLO ALCAZAR

4-STAR CASTLE HOTEL

DEFIANT BATTLEMENTS + STATELY VAULTED CEILINGS
= THE ADVENTURE OF MEDIEVAL SPAIN

Welcome to the Middle Age! The Spanish flag flies in the wind on the highest castle tower as you pass through the stone walls of the historical "Castillo Alcazar". The sumptuously rustic chambers offer something for all tastes: wooden beds fit for a knight or romantic four-poster beds in the presidential suites for sweet slumbers. Just tell the page or serving girl what you prefer! The children's water playground "Pueblo del Agua" is the place for daring battles and in the evening you can enjoy a rich and convivial feast. While you are sipping a nightcap in the panorama bar "Buena Vista Club", your children are already asleep, dreaming about the next quest under a ceiling decorated with coats of arms.

CASTLE ROMANCE UNDER THE SPANISH FLAG

FOR KNIGHTS OF ALL AGES

BACK TO THE MIDDLE AGE AT THE “CASTILLO ALCAZAR”

Do you know El Cid? No? He was the son of a minor Castilian noble and a knight at the time of the Reconquista, the Christian reconquest of the Iberian Peninsula. His successful conquests and his numerous adventures made him into a national hero. His legendary sword can still be admired in the cathedral in Burgos.

A new adventure behind every door: the 4-star “Castillo Alcazar” castle hotel combines the MYSTICAL MIDDLE AGE with modern conveniences – offering appropriately decorated rooms with many authentic details.

It's a pity that you can no longer meet the popular caballero, but you can follow in his footsteps! Enjoy the mysticism and dark secrets of a medieval castle – combined with all modern comforts and facilities. The old Spanish Castillo looks down at the Park landscape imposingly, bringing the Middle Age back to life. The 33-m battlements towers up majestically and the armour on the walls shines brilliantly, while the age-old beams and hidden niches in the vaulted rooms quietly relate adventure stories from bygone days. Bold would-be knights and dainty noblewomen only need to listen closely!

Though time seems to have stood still a thousand years ago, your journey back in time at the “Castillo Alcazar” is as simple as it can be, for you can enjoy castle romance under the Spanish flag almost on your doorstep.

SLEEP LIKE NOBLE KNIGHTS

The 120 rooms and suites at the “Castillo Alcazar” cover eight floors. From the second to the eighth floor are standard, “standard plus” and “Comfort” rooms. On the ninth floor are “Deluxe” rooms and themed suites, and in the tower are the presidential suites. Sleeping in any of these rooms is a real knightly pleasure.

RUSTIC BUT COMFORTABLE:

SUITES

with a courtly feel

THEMED SUITES

The themed suites can accommodate up to four gentlemen and ladies. They are named after Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America, and the Spanish Cardinal Mendoza. All themed suites are air-conditioned with balcony and mini-bar. The carefully chosen decorations give the chambers a noble and courtly look.

PRESIDENTIAL SUITES

The two presidential suites are situated in the lofty castle tower. They each have three rooms – a bedroom/living room with double bed, a further room with a bunk bed and seating area as well as the cosy tower room with double bed. Three rooms also mean three flat-screen TVs, air conditioning, balcony and mini bar.

ROOMS

Knightly touch

STANDARD ROOMS

STANDARD PLUS ROOMS

The standard rooms have a telephone and desk, flat-screen TV and free high-speed Internet. They are all non-smoking and can accommodate up to five guests. The standard plus rooms also have an attractive view of Europa-Park.

“COMFORT” ROOMS

The “Comfort” rooms have separate bedrooms with double bed, a second TV and separate toilet.

“DELUXE” ROOMS

Designed for two people, the “Deluxe” rooms have air conditioning, a small balcony and mini-bar.

The image shows a medieval-themed restaurant interior. The ceiling is made of dark wooden beams with various tinware items like pans, goblets, and jugs hanging from it. The walls are made of light-colored stone or plaster, with arched doorways and windows. The floor is made of red stone tiles. Several wooden tables are set with white tableware, including plates, glasses, and napkins. Large candles in heavy candlesticks are placed on the tables, casting a warm, golden glow. In the background, there is a fireplace with a fire burning. The overall atmosphere is rustic and historical.

FEAST FIT FOR A KING

Tin tableware like pans, goblets and jugs hang from the ceiling, while large candles in heavy candlesticks on the solid wood tables cast a mysterious glow. The red stone floor and dark wooden ceiling enhance the authentic knightly atmosphere. Feasting in the buffet restaurant "Castillo" is a veritable joy!

MEDIEVAL REVELS

FEASTING, CELEBRATING, REVELLING

MEAT, FISH AND FRUIT GALORE

RESTAURANT "CASTILLO":
What do knights actually eat? It should be a hearty fare and plentiful to give strength for the next battle. A buffet is therefore the ideal solution: trying out what takes your fancy and eating as much of it as you like. Do you agree? Then head for the restaurant "Castillo" – right in front of the moat.

BAR "BUENA VISTA CLUB":
At the top of the tower, on the ninth floor, is the panorama bar. Old wooden beams on the ceiling, a suit of armour, small wooden horses, a Spanish monk and various coats of arms whisk guests away to the world of the Middle Age.

In the Middle Age – between the sixth and fifteenth centuries – there were great differences in what the common people ate and what was served in the castle. The nobles had the right to hunt and therefore ate lots of meat such as wild boar, venison, rabbit and pheasant. Fishing for freshwater fish was also the prerogative of the nobility. In addition there were "higher" fruits – those picked from trees, such as pears, apples, cherries and figs.

In contrast to present-day customs, sweet and savoury dishes were eaten together – meat with stewed apple, or meat casserole with herbs and dates. Large banquets were also festive occasions, with guests sitting at large tables eating, drinking, singing and watching acrobats and jugglers.

We don't know whether knights had trouble fitting into their armour after these lavish meals. Today, thank goodness, this is no longer a problem – and you can therefore feast, drink and, if you wish, sing in our buffet restaurant to your heart's content. El Cid and King Arthur would have been envious if they had seen the long solid wooden tables at the "Castillo". So just enjoy it – with all your senses!

Afterwards, how about a drink with a panoramic view? From the roof terrace of the bar "Buena Vista Club" you can see the whole of Europa-Park and the neighbouring themed hotels. Gentlemen and ladies alike will enjoy the delicious cocktails.
